

To many, Quebec is a often a more desirable destination because the cost of living in that Province is 30-50% lower than that of Toronto and Vancouver, and the Quebec government provides more assistance to new immigrants than some of its other provincial or federal counterparts. Living in Québec means living in a democratic francophone society offering many advantages: a low cost of living, accessible education and health services, spacious and affordable housing, a secure living environment, and an environment full of attractions and abundant space.
