

Although certain medical conditions may be grounds for inadmissibility, many medical conditions are acceptable, as long as the condition will not present excessive demand on Canada's medical/social services - for specific individual questions, please contact us, prior to commencing your immigration process.