

Please note that everything depends on many variables that are out of IMMIGRACE's control – how quickly you have provided all the required documents, how quickly you have confirmed language ability, how quickly you have done your medical and security checks, which visa office your application has been submitted to, etc.

Since the new Immigration Act and Regulations were introduced, many of the time standards got affected and changed.

A lot depends on whether your application has been submitted through the Federal or the Quebec programs (certain Quebec visa offices are making decisions within 3 months of clients' submission).

Generally speaking, it is safe to say that if you have provided all of the required supporting documents and acceptable proof of language ability, your immigration process may be completed within 12 to 18 months.
